There's a Light at the End of the Tunnel. You. Katherine Rayne

From the day you are born, life begins planning out your highs and lows. The tailor-made challenges we go through are placed in our path so that we can experience them for a needed lesson. If we ignore or dull our emotions as we go through them, we dull our light. Trust your emotions and trust that you will know what to do with them. You are the light in your dark moments. With each crack, more light is allowed to shine out. The more cracks, the more light. Own your challenges and sorrows and allow them to help you grow. The stories here show how we should keep our Flash (of) Light at our side at all times, no matter if it is for something simple or something that is heartache-challenging. Use your light and your heart and become light-hearted!
