How many people do you cross paths with on any given day? A dozen? Twenty? Fifty? Ever stop to wonder how many of them might have more in common with you than you realize? What about your mail carrier? Your Zumba instructor? Your mechanic? The girl at the cash register of the supermarket? Your waiter? The person behind you in line at the bank? The truth is, we each have contact—however fleeting—with countless people each day about whom we know little to nothing.

Join award-winning author Georgia Beers as she explores this very concept in Slices of Life, her first collection of connected short stories. Each story gives you a glimpse into the life of a character who happens to be a lesbian. Some are in love. Some are in trouble. Some are just going about their day. And at some point during that day, each character will cross paths with another, and then you'll get a glimpse into her life.

Nancy Maxfield:

As a college student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library or even make summary for some publication, they are complained. Just minor students that has reading's heart and soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that studying is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Slices of Life can make you feel more interested to read.
