Zen and the Art of Making a Living. a Practical Guide to Creative Career Design

This is not your usual career planning guide. Many of those books seem to have been written for automatons. This is a career guide for human beings. It's really a book about love in action, about joy, about beauty, about caring. It's for people who want to express their talents in meaningful ways that serve others. Its aim is to assist you in developing what you need, to express what's in you in the outer world. In other words, it's designed to help you do your thing. If you don't know what your thing is, it will even help you find it. That's the good news, and no question about, this program works. Laurence G. Boldt is a writer and career consultant based in the San Francisco Bay Area.
